Snapshots

Beatrice Adelaide Wibisono

My Master's journey at NYCU has been nothing short of transformative. Specializing in AI and deep learning, I have had the privilege of conducting research under the mentorship of Prof. Ching-Chun Huang. One of my proudest achievements is having my work on indoor occupancy estimation published in the IEEE Transactions on Automation Science and Engineering, with another exciting study on text-video retrieval currently in the works.

Campus life at NYCU has been vibrant and enriching, thanks to diverse student organizations and a supportive international community. These experiences have thoroughly shaped and prepared me for a dynamic career in AI, instilling the skills and confidence needed to tackle future challenges.
