NYCU Remains Second in Taiwan in the CWUR World University Rankings, Demonstrating Sustained Competitiveness After the Merger

According to the 2025 World University Rankings released by the Center for World University Rankings (CWUR), National Yang Ming Chiao Tung University (NYCU) ranks 328th globally among 20,966 universities, remaining second in Taiwan after National Taiwan University (113th). The result highlights NYCU's sustained progress and competitiveness since the 2021 merger.

CWUR evaluates universities by Education Quality, Alumni Employment, Faculty Quality, and Research Performance, using only publicly available data. NYCU's consistent position within the global top 350 underscores its strong research capacity, talent cultivation, and alumni achievements.

By integrating its strengths in medicine and engineering, NYCU has built a distinctive interdisciplinary foundation that enhances research output and international visibility. Alumni success in global industries further reinforces its academic and professional reputation.

In Taiwan, the top five CWUR-ranked universities are NTU (113), NYCU (328), NCKU (406), NTHU (461), and NCU (683). Looking ahead, NYCU will continue to deepen interdisciplinary collaboration and global engagement, pursuing excellence in education and research to shine on the world stage.
